Hello,

Application for intern web developer

I saw that you're looking for a frontend development intern and I also see that you provide services for companies across various industries using current base technologies in solving complex problems. This is a great innovation for the company which also align with my personal views and interest.

In a quick note, here are some reasons while I and the company can make a good team;

- The job description shows that you're looking for a candidate that have a strong web development skill I happen to have those skills that is needed for such technologies and positions. In addition to that, I'm also skilled with using HTML, CSS, JavaScript and React which will also be of great help in building such projects.
- I recently build a landing page using CSS and JavaScript and also concluded an app with react
- My focus in any organization and project is bringing value for efficient delivery and problem solving. This I do by working with team members, assisting the team in other to hit our target. This usually makes working with team a priority to me so as to hit our target.

I am really looking forward of having the chance to speak with you.

Regards,

Uche Osuchukwu.
